Neighbourhood

Battersea Power Station is one of London's most recognisable buildings. Built between 1929 and 1935, it sits on the south bank of the River Thames as a legacy to the city's industrial past.

The Power Station lay in disrepair after it was decommissioned in the 1970s. The current redevelopment project involved conservation and restoration of the building's Art Deco.

The Power Station is the heart of the 42-acre development, which provides an innovative place to shop, eat, drink, live, work and play with over 100 shops, restaurants, leisure attractions (including Lift 109) and hundreds of homes for the city's workers. The Grade II listed building encompasses London's most exciting shopping and leisure destination south of the river.
