BIRMINGHAM COUNCIL HOUSE

Located in the centre of Birmingham, the Council House is a marvellous Grade II* listed building of exceptionally crafted detail. Architect H. R. Yeoville Thomason designed the building following the theme of a Venetian Palace in classical Renaissance style.

Built around a central courtyard from which the Council Chamber, Banqueting Suite, Lord Mayor's Parlour and Committee Rooms lead, Birmingham Council House remains one of the nation's outstanding Victorian buildings.

Today the Council House continues to offer exceptional facilities for meetings, banqueting and hospitality. It has provided a setting of distinction for many Royal visits, meetings of local, regional, national and international significance and it is a prestigious venue for business and social functions.

The elegance and detail in the interior and the imposing exterior render the Council House one of the City's most impressive venues for entertaining your guests.

HIGHBURY HALL

Located only three miles from the City centre, Highbury Hall offers the best of both worlds. With its tranquil and secluded setting, you could be forgiven for thinking you were in the heart of the countryside. Whether you join us for business or pleasure, you are guaranteed a prompt and efficient service and the very highest levels of attention and considerations.

Our professional catering team are available on site to provide quality cuisine for every need. From a stylish finger buffet to an elegant banquet, our catering team will be happy to suggest suitable menus and wines to compliment your meal of any occasion.

Highbury's magnificent Main Hall extends two storeys to the full height of the house. It is overlooked by a minstrel's gallery which is accessed by the main staircase. The hall provides an exceptional and versatile setting for formal banquets, lunches, business entertaining and conferences. The Drawing Room, Morning Room and Breakfast Room all lead from the Main Hall, each look out over Highbury's south facing terrace, grounds and surrounding parkland. These and the west facing Dorothy Lloyd Room are suitable for smaller conferences, as syndicate rooms for breakaway meetings during conferences or more intimate dinners and luncheons.
